Want to maximize your curls while minimizing your carbon foot print? Check out Use Me Products, an environmentally friendly product line that focuses on natural ingredients and sustainable packaging while ensuring that your hair is in great health.

Use Me Products were developed five years ago out of frustration that there were no available professional-grade products that valued both a sustainable ethos and performance. The result is a comprehensive eight-product line thats not only great for hair, but also good for the planet.

Use Me's ingredients are organic, vegan and sourced from within the United States in an effort to support local farmers. Additionally, the BPA-free bottles can be refilled at one of Use Me's refilling stations. But wait, it gets better: 1 percent of Use Me's sales go to 1% for the Planet, an environmental organization bringing together a global community of companies donating their money to sustainable causes

In addition to the curly-fave Curl Up & Shine Cream, Use Me's signature Curly Blowout Technique was a huge hit at the Texture Pavilion at the this year's America's Beauty Show!

"We had people crying because they had never seen their curls look so good," exclaimed founder Alanna York, "It was definitely a highlight of the show.

"Bigger is better and frizz is fine too, even for everyday wear. With color I really love the ombre technique of lightening the ends. To get a similar effect on textured hair, lighten six to eight (depending on hair thickness) large, vertical panels at the nape of the neck with varying color placement. This creates an edgy look for a youthful, rocker feel, while staying in the realm of age-appropriate trends.
